reporters Thursday that his group still considers Israel a legitimate state and will prevent weapons shipments to the Jewish state, but that this will happen on their terms. "Our position will not change," he said, according to Lebanon's National News Agency (NNA). "We will not allow any Israeli goods to be shipped to the Jewish state." For the first time in many years, Hezbollah is on the defensive. Unlike the sect's other opponents, Israel, Iran and Syria, Hezbollah has sustained losses. The upshot is that it seems very likely that, sooner rather than later, Hezbollah will be in peace talks with Israel. It can even be said with confidence that Hezbollah has already started the process. Any hope that Hezbollah would accede to Israel's demands is unreasonable. The Shiite terror organization will never accept that it relinquish its guerrilla warfare, diversionary and terror attacks against the Jewish state. I'm not saying it won't accept some of the other demands, I'm saying the demands are non-starters. Sheikh Hassan said Hezbollah would honor its earlier, but un

I have two linq queries that I am executing one after another. The second query results are then filtered. The following is my first linq query: var myArray = (from zz in _myDbContext.Items join k in _myDbContext.Characters on zz.CharacterId equals k.CharacterId join a in _myDbContext.Parents on k.ParentId equals a.ParentId where zz.ItemId == item.ItemId && zz.Valid >= item.Valid && (chara.Item == "").Any() || zz.IsOwner == chara.Item) && ((k.ParentId == 0).Any() || k.ParentId == a.ParentId) && (k.ParentId == a.Id).Any() select zz); This gives me all the characters in an array that are owned by some item, that are either parents or children of some item. This is my second query: var characters = (from zz in _myDbContext.Characters where zz.Valid >= item.Valid && zz.IsOwner == item.IsOwner
